“ ‘The Cabinet Makers’ Journal, specially destined for Architects,

Cabinet Makers and Builders,' is issued monthly. It consists of four quarto pages of reading matter, illustrated with wood engravings, and contains, beside, 4 plates engraved on steel, and printed in black, tints and colors. Each number treats of ancient and modern cabinet work. The modern department gives representations of store, office, railroad, and church furniture. This portion also describes the various processes employed for the preservation and staining the different species of wood. The ancient department offers specimens of civil and religious articles of cabinet work during the Middle Ages; the Reformation, and under the respective reigns of Louis XIII., Louis XIV., Louis XV., and Louis XVI. In both departments care is taken to reproduce practical objects, and, in order to facilitate the execution of a piece from the various models, they are always drawn upon a large scale."

It is in itself a résumé of national art in France, from Francis I. to Louis XIII. ‘The Monograph,’ etc., consists of 145 plates, 5 of them being beautifully colored lithographs. The First volume contains representations of the Oval Court, the Maintenon Pavilion, the Grand Vestibule, and Chapel of the Trinity. The Second Volume is specially devoted to internal decorations, and contains detailed representations of the Gallery of Francis I., the Gallery of Henry II., the State Rooms, and St. Saturnin’s Chapel. The Historical and Descriptive Text by M. Champollion-Figeac, is replete with interesting and hitherto unpublished information, and is also illustrated.”
